Description

This course continues to develop the linguistic and cultural concepts introduced in ASL I. Students will expand their ASL vocabulary and incorporate greater use of the linguistic features unique to signed languages. Varied sentence structures are explored and encouraged. The use of space, classifiers, and storytelling techniques are also introduced. Current events relating to the deaf community are frequently discussed as they occur, and off-campus opportunities to venture into the Deaf-World are made available. After a brief survey of various professions related to deafness and deaf education, the course culminates with an introductory translation project that permits students to experience and appreciate the challenges and complexities of translation and interpretation from English. (Cappiello, Spring, offered annually)
