The Young Memorial Trust for International Peace and Understanding was established by Joseph O. Young (Hobart '37) and family to support activities at the Colleges that seek to foster international trust, understanding, and peaceful relations among the nations and peoples of the world, particularly through instruction, symposia, addresses, awards, or other academic activities in foreign languages, literatures, arts and cultures, philosophy, political science, international affairs, and world history. The Trust also seeks to support the education of teachers, particularly those preparing for elementary school teaching. Applications to support such activities are welcome from any member of the Colleges’ community, faculty, student, or staff, but the primary beneficiaries of the grants should be students. Applications are reviewed by a committee of faculty.

Applications are reviewed twice a semester. The deadlines for these reviews are October 1, November 1, February 15, and March 26. To apply for a grant, please complete the following form and forward it by email attachment by one of the dates indicated to the convener of the Young review committee (currently Steven Lee, lee@hws.edu). Note that the committee will generally provide only partial funding for projects, expecting that applicants will also seek funding from other campus sources.

Successful applicants are required to make the funded activity, or the results of it, accessible in a substantial way to the campus community (see question #3 below), and should submit a report to the committee on the funded activity within one month of the activity’s completion.
