198	Consulting	Arthur D. Little	www.adlittle-us.com	Bos/NYC	N/A	68 Fargo Street, Boston, MA 02210	ADL may be the "oldest firm in the consulting industry," but that hardly means its staffers are stodgy. Insiders describe their colleagues as "energetic," "ambitious and "driven," as well as "laid-back and fun to work with" (not to mention "intelligent"). A manager explains, "The culture has a great combination of entrepreneurship and professionalism in a work hard, play hard environment."

200	Consulting	Booz & Company	http://www.booz.com/global/home/oin_us	NYC	N/A	101 Park Avenue 18th Floor, New York, NY 10178	Insiders say that the focus at Booz is definitely on "high-quality work," which makes for a "challenging, analytical, performance-driven, very intense and client-centric" environment. The firm is "full of young, dynamic, go-getter-type people" whom colleagues describe as independent, thoughtful and energetic. Many staffers say their co-workers are also "affable," and that the Booz culture is "team-oriented, with strong collaboration among colleagues."
201	Consulting	Boston Consulting Group	www.bcg.com	Bos/Chicago/NYC/DC	N/A	One Beacon Street, Boston, MA 02109	There's "no one mold that you need to fit into" at BCG, where employees say "you can be yourself." "It's a collection of individuals," a source says, and this lack of "a type" makes for "a very comfortable atmosphere." BCGers describe themselves as "open and tolerant," as well as "curious, driven and respectful." And while the firm is "collegial and supportive," its defining characteristic may be the "driven, intellectually stimulating, performance-oriented" vibe, a consultant notes.

The positive side of this type of culture is that there are "many different lenses with which to view a problem." On the negative side, a consultant notes, it can be "difficult to get alignment internally." According to a colleague, "Everyone is busy doing their own thing," which can sometimes feel as though "no one cares about anybody else."
