This course will trace the historical development of incarceration practices in the United States, from colonial penitentiaries to modern-day prisons. Through a critical analysis of primary sources, scholarly texts, literature, film, and other cultural artifacts, students will interrogate the ways in which the prison system has shaped and been shaped by American society, institutions, and cultural narratives. We will consider the transference of the European system of gaols to the rise of formalized penal systems, like the Auburn and Pennsylvania Systems. We will also investigate prison reform efforts drawing on reformers' writings. Memoirs and prison letters, such as

22	GLS- 101-02	Topic: The Poetics of Water	1	MWF	10:50 AM - 11:50 AM	Stern	304	McCorkle,James

This global studies course, we will be considering a poetics of the ocean. The ocean is both metaphor and material, it is a contested space, and a space of radical freedom. The ocean holds centuries of pain, yet it is also speculative. Waterscapes are being exploited and are sites of spoilage and degradation in the Anthropocene. This course will braid literary texts with theoretical work on eco-critical approaches, with a decidedly Africana/Indigene positioning. Our reading may range from Homer's The Odyssey, to narratives of the Middle Crossing, to Pauline Gumbs's autobiography The Undrowned to speculative fiction, such as Nnedi Okorafor's Lagoon.

Multi-Designated Courses

There are limited number of instances in the Schedule of Courses in which classes fall into two unique categories: (1) Within Subject -- classes with multi-level course designations (eg. ANTH 323/423) and (2) Cross Subject - classes which have multiple designations but the same course content (eg. ARCH 351/ENV 351). These classes are viewed by the Colleges as "class equivalents" and students are only permitted to take one of the equivalents for credit toward their degree. Students should also be aware that for the within subject classes in category (1) there will be students that are taking the course at different levels and this will include differences in assignments, etc.

Multi-Designated Courses
There are limited number of instances in the Schedule of Courses in which classes fall into two unique categories: (1) Within Subject -- classes with multi-level course designations (eg. ANTH 323/423) and (2) Cross Subject - classes which have multiple designations but the same course content (eg. ARCH 351/ENV 351). These classes are viewed by the Colleges as "class equivalents" and students are only permitted to take one of the equivalents for credit toward their degree. Students should also be aware that for the within subject classes in category (1) there will be students that are taking the course at different levels and this will include differences in assignments, etc.
